Hi! everyone! Today, I have a question regarding usage of "be forced to". My general understanding about "be forced to" has been usually involved a situation which I have ...

Picked, jimmied and forced mean different things. Picking a lock means putting a small tool into the lock through the key-hole and manipulating it delicately so the lock opens. ...

Forced is a bit stronger-sounding than made. I was made to do it could mean that you were physically forced to do it, that you were commanded to do it-- or it could have simply ...

Hi, Are "give in to" and "give way to" interchangeable in the following? Suppose John cannot be forced to do anything by violence. Under no circumstances will John give way ...

"Forced to close" sounds like an emergency power edict. If the stores did not abide by the edict, then I would expect the next step would be to "forcibly close" those stores, most ...

"To get someone to do something" is a standard phrase, meaning to ask them to paint the house, lend you some money etc. We also say "have someone do something" ...
